Origins and Development

Estonian lace, often referred to as Eesti pits in the native language, traces its roots back to the 19th century, during a period when Estonian communities experienced increased exposure to European textile arts. While lace-making in Estonia was influenced by broader European trends?particularly Belgian and Venetian styles?it developed unique local characteristics through adaptation and innovation.

Historical records suggest that Estonian women initially learned lace-making as a domestic craft, primarily for personal use, adornment, and trade. The craft gained prominence as a symbol of social status and regional identity, especially in rural communities where lace decoration became integral to traditional costumes.
